

The Columbus Dispatch

$1.50 | MONDAY, NOVEMBER 13, 2017

DISPATCH.COM

Quake kills at least 140
on Iran-Iraq border / A3

Mitchell, OSU fall in nail-biter to Louisville / D1

NATIONAL SECURITY AGENCY

Security breach shakes intelligence force

By Scott Shane, Nicole Perlroth
and David E. Sanger
The New York Times

WASHINGTON — Jake Williams awoke in April in an Orlando, Florida, hotel where he was leading a training session. Checking Twitter, the cybersecurity expert was dismayed to discover that he had been thrust into the middle of one of the worst security debacles ever to befall U.S. intelligence. Williams had written on his company blog about the Shadow Brokers, a mysterious group that had somehow obtained many of the hacking tools the United States has used to spy on other countries. Now, the group had replied in an angry screed on Twitter. It identified him — correctly

SEE SECURITY, A8

1.88 WITH CARD
Fresh Heritage Farm Boneless Chicken Breasts or Thighs

High: 45 Low: 30
Details on Page B10

HOLIDAY CHARITY

Woman teaches her kids joy of giving

By Danae King
The Columbus Dispatch

Growing up in Ukraine, when 9-year-old Nadia Karnatova heard that someone would give her a Christmas gift, she assumed it would be an apple or an orange — the fruit given to a poor child at church for the holiday.

Instead, she discovered something more precious. It was a gift that might have excited another child for a few minutes but one that changed Karnatova's life.

It was a Barbie doll, a toy she had dreamed of owning.

Now, at 32, Karnatova shares gifts like that with children she's never met all over the world, and she teaches her own children to do the same.

The gifts are packed and sent through Operation Christmas Child, a project of Samaritan's Purse, an international Christian organization.

The project's mission is "to demonstrate God's love in a tangible way to children in need around the world," according to its website. It does this by including

SEE GIVING, A9

Fine feathered friends

Don Monke checks in on his silver-laced Wyandotte bantam cockerel at his home near Plain City. "They're a nice animal to work with," daughter Holly Eades said. [TOM DODGE/DISPATCH]

Chicken breeders might have gotten into the hobby because it's cheap, but they're hooked now

By Ken Gordon | The Columbus Dispatch

Jim Ward bent down and leaned in close so he could hear the young girl over the cacophony of clucking and crowing. Ward was judging the youth showmanship competition on Saturday at the Ohio National Poultry Show at the Ohio Expo Center.

Ward asked 8-year-old Michaela Eades to take her silver-laced Japanese bantam chicken out of its cage and spread out a wing. He then asked her questions about the bird, such as what made the breed special. "They're small and friendly," Eades said. Meanwhile, across the cavernous arena in

SEE CHICKENS, A6

On the web

To see Don Monke and other family members preparing and showing their chickens at the Ohio National Poultry Show, visit Dispatch.com/video.

FINAL
2 DAYS!
TODAY &
TOMORROW 10-9

ANNIVERSARY SALE!

bedroomsfirst
the bedroom superstore.

BRICE ROAD
2675 BRICE ROAD
TUTTLE CROSSING
5770 BRITTON PKWY
POLARIS
8701 LYRA DR
bedroomsfirst.com